3 NEW – PACE COURSES – BEGINNING FALL 2013
Here are some great NEW course offerings through PACE.

PACE-C 250 Leadership and Public Policy; 3 cr.; S&H (will not count for credit if you have taken PACE-C 211)
Class # 29677, 1:30-2:45 PM MW, Kirkwood 203, Weinberg
Class # 29678, 4:00-5:15 PM TuTh, Woodburn 106, Napoli

Health Care? Immigration? Climate Change? Same-Sex marriage? How do decisions on these and countless other major public issues get made in America? This course provides the answers by giving students an interdisciplinary introduction to public leadership and policy making in the United States. Students will begin by exploring important theoretical and empirical studies of leadership styles and the relationship between American politics and civil society. Then they will examine examples of public leadership and sites of public policy making from the local community to the national capital. In each section, discussion about specific individuals and issues will be used to illustrate the role of leaders and particular institutions at every level of American public life. The course will conclude by asking students to blend their understanding of theory and practice in American public leadership and policy making by analyzing an important current issue individually and... as a class. Throughout the course, students will also be introduced to the primary skills of effective engagement in political and civic discussion, deliberation, advocacy, and action.

PACE-C 295 Citizenship and Careers; 2 cr.; graded S/F; requires authorization to enroll – contact pace @ Indiana.edu, 812-856-7882

Class # 29518. Meets Mondays, 4:00 – 6:00 PM. Sycamore 003, Bergonzi.

Some in-class meetings may be replaced by online work.

In what ways are you a consumer, a taxpayer, or a citizen? How might your personality preferences reveal good fits for your career choices? Taught in the classroom as well as through online work, students will bring the theories of the PACE program to the practice of citizenship skill development and career planning. The course will highlight the learning objectives of PACE while exploring individual style, personality type preferences through the Myers Briggs Type Indicator (MBTI), and individual strengths and values assessments. Students will assess personal goals and the use of PACE courses and their other undergraduate work as preparation for their remaining years of college and for post-college education, career, and political and civic engagement choices. Students will begin constructing personal statements for individual engagement portfolios in this class, to be continued in the PACE capstone course.

PACE-C 420 Readings and Research

Special 1-credit class # 32637: Leadership, Service & Advocacy: Food Policies and Priorities from Local to Global.

Friday 12:20 – 1:35 PM, Woodburn 203 (some in-class meetings will be replaced by project work)

This course includes a practice component of leadership, service, and advocacy in the context of food policy and poverty. First, we will examine a variety of economic, ecological, sociological and political dimensions of food in local, national, and international contexts. Investigating the policies and processes that drive the production, distribution, and consumption of food will be used to examine the effects of these policies and processes on our diet, our health, our economy and our environment from the local to the global. Then, we will analyze different approaches to leadership and advocacy as they relate to food policy and poverty. As a final project for the course, students will have the opportunity to put the knowledge and skills they have learned throughout the semester into practice by advocating for a local cause related to food and poverty or contributing to an existing Oxfam America initiative on the IU campus.

9 Internships, Careers and Scholarships

9 SUMMER DEVELOPMENT INTERNSHIPS
The Indiana University Foundation is pleased to invite applications for the Summer 2013 Development Internship Program. The internship program is designed to encourage students to consider development as a profession. It is open to both graduates and undergraduates with an emphasis on students enrolled in non-profit management classes or those with a personal interest or experience with philanthropy. The internship has both educational and experiential components. Every Monday the interns will be in a class at the Indiana University Foundation in Bloomington; the remainder of the week will be spent working on a project in a school/unit. Through a combination of classroom learning, practical application, and professional development, interns will gain a full understanding of higher education fundraising. These paid internships run from May 20 – August 12, 2013 and require a commitment of 35-40 hours per week. Interns will attend the Principles and Techniques of Fundraising at The Fund Raising School in Indianapolis June 10-13, 2013, and will have one week of unpaid vacation July 1-5, 2013. The internship program is for those interested in considering a career in philanthropy, and is open to Indiana University undergraduate and graduate students, as well as new Indiana University graduates, December 2012 or later. Applicants must have a minimum 3.0 GPA and be registered as a senior or 2nd year masters student for the fall semester of 2013. Preference will be given to those who have demonstrated involvement in philanthropic activities. Please submit a cover letter and resume to https://jobs.iuf.iu.edu. Application materials must be received no later than 5 p.m. on April 19, 2013.
