From the PACE Office

1 PACE INTERNSHIP SCHOLARSHIPS

PACE offers scholarships to students who are planning an internship to fulfill the certificate requirements. Two of these awards are named at the behest of Steven and Lisa Block, $500 each.* The rest of the scholarships are $250. You can send a note to apply for a scholarship as you are setting up your summer or fall experience. See the details at:

http://pace.indiana.edu/program/funding.shtml#funding1

*The priority deadline to apply for the Block awards has been extended to April 15.

---------------------------------

Considering an internship or starting to think about it? Check the resources at the website, http://pace.indiana.edu/program/internship.shtml.

You may set up an appointment to consult with the PACE internship director by calling the office. The forms needed to approve your enrollment in the internship credit are the internship site letter of understanding signed by your site supervisor and the C410 proposal, both of which you will bring in when you meet to discuss your arrangements. One or both of these may be transmitted electronically if needed. Call 812.856.1747 or 812.856.7882

PACE-C 410 internship credit must be completed before taking PACE-C 450 Capstone Seminar – so complete the internship BEFORE the spring of senior year.

Still too early for you to do an internship? Be sure to enroll in PACE-C 295 to continue your exploration and clarification!

2 THE MEAT WE EAT: A 2014 THEMESTER COURSE

LAMP L416 Senior Seminar; Professor Carl Weinberg
Fall 2014, T, Th 4:00-5:15 p.m., Rose B111

Burgers. Fried chicken. Hot dogs. Odds are high that you’ve consumed all these tasty items. But odds are low that you’ve ever seriously thought about where they came from. Who raised the cattle, poultry, and hogs that became your dinner? Who performed the labor to slaughter them and convert their carcasses into edible wonders such as nuggets, bacon, and ground beef? What exactly is in the meat on your plate? From the early twentieth-century world of The Jungle to the recent context of Super Size Me!, the meat we eat has been at the center of debates over immigration, race, labor unionism, gender politics, globalization, animal rights, ethics, nutrition science, and consumer and workplace health and safety. Students will sink their teeth into this topic (even the vegetarians among you) through a variety of readings, films, written assignments, class discussion, and field trips to farm and factory.

Open to LAMP (Liberal Arts and Management Program) students AND to IU seniors with instructor permission*

3 SUMMER AND FALL 2014 COURSES

See the list of fall courses offered that will count for the PACE certificate at http://go.iu.edu/atJ. This link also appears on the homepage of the PACE website.

Summer 2014 courses that count may be viewed at http://pace.indiana.edu/forms/Summer%202014%20PACE%20courses.pdf.
PLEASE note: the flat fee tuition charge now will cover 12-18 credit hours. A per-credit-hour fee is charged if you are enrolled in under 12 credits or for each credit over 18.

4 NOW YOU CAN SEE YOUR OFFICIAL PACE ADVISING REPORT

There is a new function in your OneStart Student Center that allows you to more easily view your progress in the PACE certificate, if it has been added to your degree objectives (this may not have yet been done if your degree is outside the College of Arts & Sciences). If you review the report and believe a course is not counting as it should, please contact Joelen Bergonzi to resolve the matter.

Here is the path to find the report:
• Go to the OneStart Student Center;
• Choose the Advising 2 tab;
• Click View My Adv. Report;
• On the AAR menu that appears, select the Acad Program drop down menu to switch to the PACE certificate – which is marked as “Arts & Sciences Ugrd Nondeg (Politcl & Civ Eng...)”
• It will return a report that shows progress in the certificate.

Internships, Careers, and Conferences

5 HIRE BIG 10 PLUS VIRTUAL CAREER FAIR

He will also discuss various opportunities with the US Department of State, including internships, fellowships, and careers.

Campus Events of Interest

8 STATE OF HATE AND EXTREMISM IN THE U.S.
Tuesday, April 8, 6 - 7:30 p.m., Room 223 in Hodge Hall, Kelley School of Business, 1309 E. 10th St.
A workshop to educate students on poverty and hate crimes in the United States; facilitated by Lea Brooks, director of outreach at Southern Poverty Law Center, an organization based in Montgomery, Ala., that works to monitor and advocate against hate and extremist activity in the United States. Brooks will educate students about the work of the SPLC and the issues of hate crimes from both historical and contemporary lenses. She will help participants raise questions about the influence of poverty and inequities in society, while also analyzing the impacts of hate crimes in the United States. The workshop will be a part of Culture of Care Week, put on by the IUSA Culture of Care initiative in line with the “Respect” focus area of Culture of Care. The IUSA Diversity and Inclusion Office works to bring together groups and organizations across the Indiana University Bloomington campuses that normally do not engage each other, generating discussions that contribute to the inclusiveness of the IU community. The events are free and open to the public. http://www.indiana.edu/~dema/news/items/brooks_featured_at_hate_workshop.shtml

9 BECOME A GARDENCORPS MEMBER!
The IUB Campus Garden Initiative, a project of the IU Office of Sustainability, fosters environmental and social sustainability by creating interactive, edible gardening spaces on the IU-Bloomington campus. GardenCorps members are required to put in 6-10 hours at the garden and are responsible for their own independent projects (this might mean workshops, events, or other such things focused around your own personal interests!). Summer GardenCorps members will also be responsible with harvest help and leading workdays. While members will not receive monetary compensation, they will gain valuable skills in leadership and in organic gardening, as well as access to lots of free produce! The Summer 2014 applications will be due Friday, April 11. For more information, you can visit http://sustain.indiana.edu/programs/campus-garden-initiative/garden-corps-membership.php or e-mail iugarden@indiana.edu to request an application or to submit questions.
